Construction Sciences Engineering Division to Join CMW Geosciences

We are pleased to announce that Construction Sciences' engineering division will be integrating with the CMW Geosciences business, effective 1 January 2024.

CMW Geosciences and Construction Sciences are both part of the Kiwa Group and have a strong, established working relationship.

Integrating our engineering divisions offers a range of benefits for our staff and clients. In bringing the teams together, we strengthen our geotechnical capability and capacity to deliver growth into new regions and markets.

The combined professional and technical expertise of Construction Sciences and CMW Geosciences will be a valuable resource for clients and reinforces our status as a trusted project partner on major infrastructure projects.

All clients can expect to receive high quality engineering services from the integration with CMW Geosciences, and we anticipate there will be minimal impact to existing business operations and projects.

Construction Sciences will continue to deliver trusted construction materials testing services from Australia's largest network of NATA accredited testing laboratories and growing team of more than 950 staff in over 50 laboratories located in Australia and New Zealand.
